It's time to vote for the people - NOT the party.

And here are the only people who can take back the power that will determine Aroostook County's prosperity.

Cathy Bouchard Martin, of Caribou, is running for the Maine Senate. Cathy has been creating job opportunities through trade shows and energizing job searches and job creation alike for many years.

Paul Berube has returned to his childhood home of Fort Kent to raise his family after many successful years of doing business in New Hampshire and southern Maine. Paul will bring common sense back to the St. John Valley delegation.

John Churchill, a lifelong Democrat, is running to return to Augusta to correct the mistakes of the recent Legislature's shortcomings and, repetitive, failed attempts to make positive change.

Peter Edgecomb, of Caribou, has lived and worked in Aroostook County for many years. Peter has extensive expertise in education, business and municipal government.

Richard Scott, from Presque Isle, has many years of public and private experience in municipal government and economic development. Richard's commitment to the good of the County is proven.

Bernard Ayotte, a sawmill owner in Caswell, has been actively involved in the education and business matters of Aroostook County for many years. His knowledge and experience will make a difference.

Rudy St. Peter, an avid spokesman for northern Maine has done much for the good of Aroostook County and promises to hammer home a message that Augusta will never forget.

The future of Aroostook County lies in the hands of this vibrant team of change makers.

Paid for by the Aroostook County Republican Committee.
